

Nr: 37

Puzzling and rewarding: Piecing together a joint Master's programme in a university alliance

Sara Laginder, Office of the President, Anna Koch Öster, International Office, and Alasdair Skelton, Department of Geological Sciences

Posterpresentation

Abstract

This presentation is based on two award-winning posters, presented at the EAIE conference (2024 and 2025), they explore the road and the puzzle leading to the creation of the Joint Master's Programme in Transdisciplinary Studies of Climate, Environment and Energy which SU coordinates. The master's programme has been created within the CIVIS Alliance which consists of 11 European and 6 African universities. Insights and reflections from SU's perspective on assembling a transdisciplinary programme within a University Alliance with a large number of partners will be presented. Practical tips and hard-learned lessons will be shared to help others to develop similar partnerships and avoid common pitfalls.