Deputy Vice-Chancellor

Call for proposals: funding for strategic investments

The Board of Human Science invites applications for funding for strategic investments in research and research training:

- Inter-faculty project support aimed at writing applications for funding to external funding bodies.
- Support for inter-faculty networks and the initiation of inter-faculty collaboration.
- Support for inviting leading researchers.
- “Black box”.

Applications for these funds must be received by the Office of Human Science no later than 1 October 2019, except for “Black box”, where applications can be submitted at any time during the year.

The investments involve support for innovative research initiatives and inter-faculty collaboration. The support should target investments where contributions from the Board of Human Science are likely to provide added value.

Support will not be provided for continuous operations but for the build-up and initiation of new activities. Activities involving several departments – from different disciplines and, preferably, from different faculties – will be given priority when the decision of funding is made. Strategic investments mainly refer to inter-faculty efforts, but investments can also be strategic for the academic area without involving other faculties.

The Board of Human Science’s strategic research funding

The academic area has set aside SEK 3 million for strategic investments in 2019, divided between two calls for proposals during the year. The first call of 2019 took place in March.

The granted funds will be paid once the decision has been made. These funds can be used for one year after the decision. A brief presentation of the result, as well as a financial report, should be submitted to the Board within a year after the decision. Unused funds should be refunded to the Board.

1. Inter-faculty project support for applications for funding from external funding bodies
(scale: reasonable compensation relative to the need, provided in the form of remuneration for about 100 hours of work/1 month per project).

Assessment criteria:

- A clear and urgent research question.
- A plan for implementing the project.
- An account of where the application is planned to be sent.
- Genuine research collaboration, presented as a convincing description of the synergies of the collaboration.
- Feasibility based on the group's expertise and composition.

Application format

The Board's front page should be enclosed first in the application (see www.su.se/humanvet). Salary funds should refer to actual salary costs, including social fees. Funding for overhead will not be granted.

2. Support for inter-faculty networks and the initiation of inter-faculty collaboration in research and research training (within the academic area or university, as well as national or international collaborative projects relating to, for example, major calls for proposals from Swedish and European research councils).

Assessment criteria:

- A good idea underpinned by clear argumentation.
- A network plan/plan for genuinely innovative research collaboration based on a description of the synergies of the collaboration.
- A travel plan (where relevant).
- Feasibility based on the group's expertise and composition.
- Where applicable, project collaboration between qualified researchers with previous experience of project management involving major research grants.
