

EQUINODE

Doctoral Students in Health Equity Research

Background

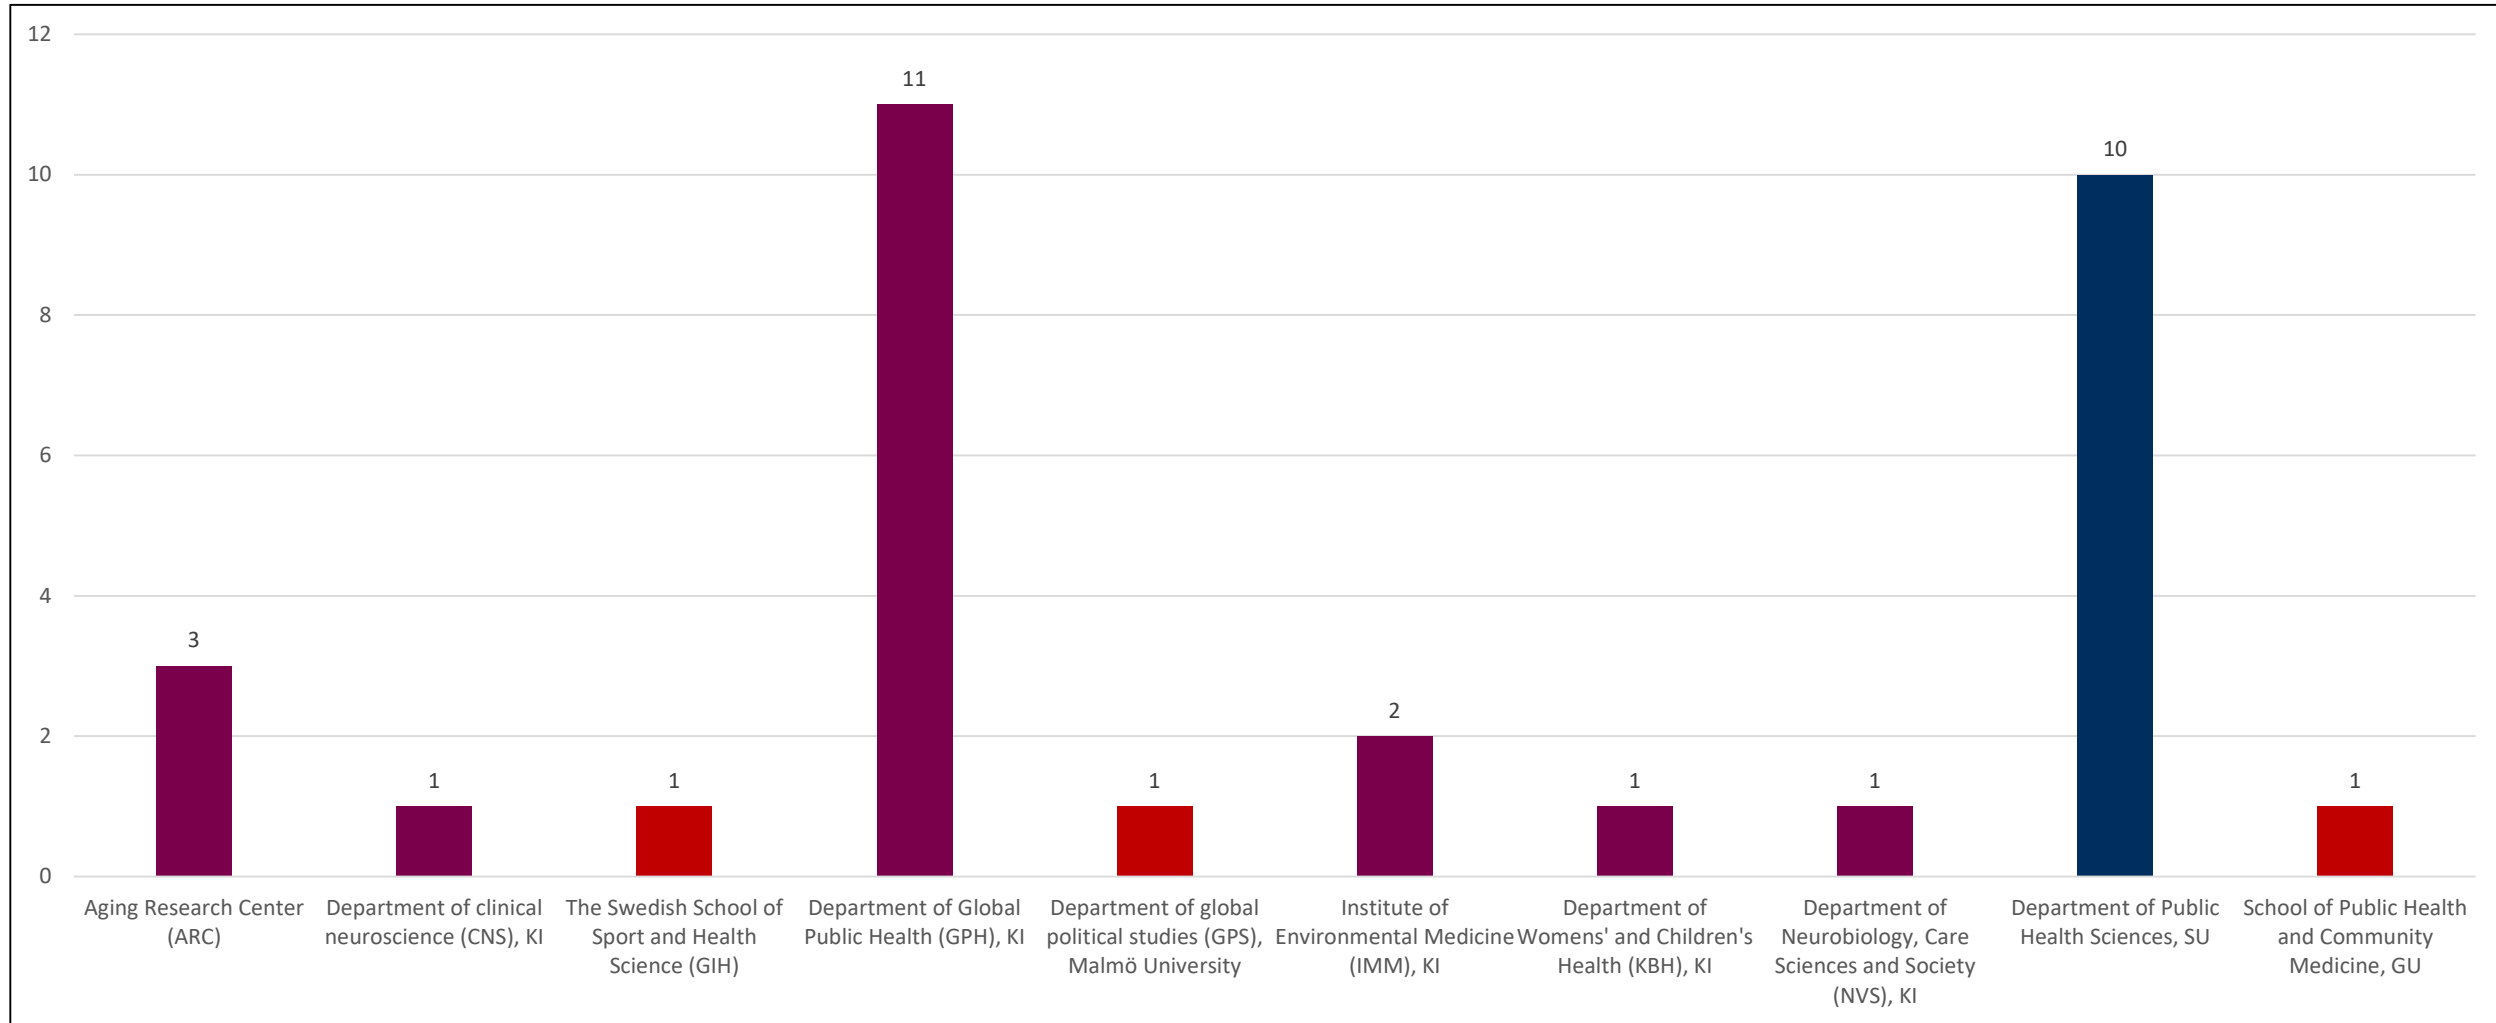

Centre for Health Equity Studies (CHESS) is a research centre at the Department of Public Health Sciences at Stockholm University

The CHESS board has made a strategic decision to strengthen interdisciplinary exchange among doctoral students focusing on health equity research

In a first step, an invitation was extended to doctoral students at Stockholm University and Karolinska Institutet, but participation is open to any doctoral student at a Swedish university with an interest in health equity research

Participants

 Karolinska Institutet

 Stockholm University

 Other

Activities

The network activities have included lectures, journal clubs and online workshops. The participants have also been offered the opportunity for 'article swaps' (peer review of ongoing work). The meetings have been organised both online and on campus Albano.