

PREFACE

In this third issue of "LABORATIV ARKEOLOGI" a grant from the Swedish council for research in Humanities and Social Sciences has enabled us to bring out a publication with a considerable more attractive appearance. Ann-Marie Hansson and Kerstin Lidén have taken a large part of the editorial work. Andreas Lindberg, Michael Olausson and Bo Zachrisson have helped with illustrations, layout and montage. The drawings to the article on the pit-house was done by Agneta Åkermark.

As usual the content covers a wide field from Stone age nourishment to Medieval weights. I hope the reader will appreciate the heavy work carried out by the authors in the laboratory as well as in the field to bring out new evidence from the fragmented archaeological source material.
