As we strive to improve and tweak our summer programme, we ask all our students to give us feedback through an anonymous survey. We use all constructive feedback to make the following year even better! Here are some of their earnest answers on what skills they've developed participating in the summer programme 2023.

Language mostly. And I made some super great friends for which I am grateful.

I developed my English skills because I needed to prepare myself for every class by reading. I needed to communicate with other classmates and lecturers in English. I had to write in English for essay assignments. More importantly, I gained an increased network. I got to hone my interpersonal skills to get to know new friends.

Networking and interpersonal more than anything, although the academic side was also incredibly informative.

At first, I did not know what to expect because I had never been involved in such a programme. However, after the programme, it turned out I improved mostly my soft skills. By that, I mean presenting my own opinions in English in front of the whole class which helped to step out of my comfort zone. This will be the baseline for my next activities at home or abroad. I also made incredible friends from different countries all around the world and discovered there are only little differences when it comes to partying. Two weeks was quite a short period, but I made a strong bond with my friend group - most of us cried when it was time to say our last goodbye.

Academic writing in a short amount of time, legal communication and made new friends.

Communication, soft skills in general, independence, how to write applications, history of development of human rights, UN human rights and EU human rights.

I have developed language and interpersonal skills. I also learned something about arbitration and legal english :)

Networking, communication and analysing skills.

Interpersonal skills, in meeting new people and connecting with them and learning about their cultures and lifestyles. More insight into litigation and how to form a complaint.

Surely loved the broadening of understanding of legal systems from around the world, mostly because of the different students and staff.

I think I improved on my ability to talk to people and communicate to people from different walks of life.

My language skills! I learnt how to write an English essay, improved my ability in reading legal literature and my oral English.

Academic skills: Have the basic understanding of the EU legal system now, I was able to consider certain philosophical questions that have not been raised in my degree at home. Interpersonal/Networking skills: speaking to students from all across the globe was a fantastic experience.

I learned a lot from meeting so many different people from various countries. It was a really great experience to see more of the world through everyone and learning about their countries too.

I have developed a deeper understanding of international law, improved my networking skills and presentation skills.

I gained a better understanding how people, who are not from Europe, see Europe and the current situation of the world.

I got comfortable with speaking English daily, Also met new people and made connections so a lot of soft skills development.

Networking and communication skills! Having to connect with, and communicate with people from different countries was beneficial to future work with clients.
